Microsoft wins lawsuit and triomis expand cloud services

United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit ruled in favor of Microsoft. The appeal judgment will strengthen the trust of EU customers for the privacy protection of their data in Microsoft Online Services outside the U.S.A.

On 07/14/2016 the Court upheld the position of Microsoft that the U.S. government could not force Microsoft unilaterally gain access to customer data that located exclusively on servers outside the US.

This case demonstrates the commitment by Microsoft to protect customer data, even if this requires judicial action. The decision is important for three reasons: it ensures that the people's privacy rights are protected by the laws of their own country; it helps to ensure the legal protection of the real world applies to the digital one; and it paves the way for better solutions that meet both the privacy and data protection as well as the law enforcement needs.

Confirmed by this ruling triomis GmbH forced their cloud activities. Through special migration services triomis leads their customers on the way to Microsoft Online Services.

For Microsoft Dynamics CRM triomis offers the Move-to-Cloud service. Using preconfigured Azure VMs local installations are first migrated to the current version of Dynamics CRM. The data will then upload to the online version. With help of this service offering triomis could successfully migrate several outdated Dynamics CRM implementation in the first half 2016.

Based on many years of Dynamics CRM implementation and development experience triomis customers benefit by the variety of add-ons and CRM extensions. Currently the add-ons go through the certification and deployment processes for the new Microsoft Azure Marketplace AppSource. In future, these add-ons and solutions can be installed directly over this marketplace in Dynamics CRM.

Stephan Thurek, managing partner of triomis GmbH said: "This judgment gives our Cloud business a new boost and a greater legal certainty for our customers in Europe. In addition, the new Azure Marketplace AppSource helps us to offer our solutions directly inside Dynamics CRM. We are waiting for this opportunity since we developed our triomis VAT Calculator for Dynamics CRM version 3.0 in 2004. "

Appsource helps customers to find the right solution for their business needs. They can download and test solutions that have been specifically tailored to their industry that work with the products they already use.
